PREFACE

Four year undergraduate Honours in Bachelor of Social Work (BSW) equips students to address social issues and problems at multiple levels using a variety of theoretical frameworks. It aims to mold socially committed and professionally competent social workers who can contribute towards the goal of social development of the society and to extend right based support systems to families, individuals and communities, especially to the most vulnerable and marginalized sections of our society. Through this program, students move between diverse fields of practice, applying critical skills in recognizing and incorporating best practices into their professional repertoire.

The curricular framework of the BSW (Hons) offers three options for the students, suitable for their future plans and interests. The options are Three-Year BSW Degree, Four- Year BSW Honours Degree and Four-Year BSW Honours with Research Degree. The programme is built upon crucial thrust areas like disciplinary knowledge; field practicum and skill-based education; multi-disciplinary and value-added courses; language and communication abilities; and cutting- edge research. The BSW (Hons) programme is student- centric and it offers experiential learning methods based on critical pedagogy. The graduate students can also carve out their own customized pathways from the FYUGP architecture, incorporating courses from other higher education institutions.

Course Code	MG1MDCSWK100
Course Level	100
Course Summary	This course will be helping the students to develop knowledge on basic Social Science concepts and academic debates on human sufferings. It is expected that the students will be able to develop social science imagination after the completion of this course. This will further equip them to learn Social Work methods with a scientific understanding of the social context of individuals and communities. It looks at the foundational ideas of social analysis and investigates several approaches to bringing about constructive social change. Students will use the writings of Paulo Freire, Gandhi, and other intellectuals to critically analyse societal structures, power relations, and marginalization. Through an exploration of many approaches to social change, such as advocacy, policy reform, activism, and community development, students will acquire the necessary skills and knowledge to effectively function as agents of social transformation.

Programme	BSW (Hons)
Course Name	Queer Social Work
Type of Course	DCE
Course Code	MG7DCESWK402
Course Level	400
Course Summary	This course aims to provide critical understanding of social work practice issues related to persons and communities who are lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer (LGBTIQ++). The course is designed to develop frameworks for questioning notions of essential and stable identities, such as genders and sexualities. Queer Social Work interrogates the heteronormative and gender binary constructs within social work theory and practice. It enquires the ways in which social workers can challenge the oppressive social structures and discourses that pathologises and discriminate against queer persons. The course will explore how best to use queer theories to address social inequality at multiple levels. The course will also critically analyse the limits of queer theory and queer social work.

Course Name	DISSERTATION
Type of Course	PRJ
Course Code	MG8PRJSWK400
Course Level	400
Course Summary	Students will develop practical experience in social work research methodologies by constructing research problems and questions, choosing appropriate methodologies, tools of data collection and analysis. Students will relate data to socially related questions and present data in a research context thereby acquiring skills and knowledge required for placing Social Work as a research informed practice and practice informed research.

COURSE CONTENT

The student should present TWO seminar papers and submit a dissertation with minimum 100 pages at the end of the program. The dissertation should follow the methodology of the discipline. Each student has to prepare and finalize a proposal towards the end of the SEVENTH semester.

The Department Council will review research proposals and decide allocation of Research Guides. The Department will be responsible for conducting workshops of Proposal Writing, Research Writing, Data Collection and Data Analysis.

The matters pertaining to dissertation should be regularly discussed during research conference with the research supervisor on weekly basis scheduled for this purpose

Planning the Dissertation

This will entail following:

- Selecting a topic for investigation.
- Establishing the precise focus of study by deciding on the aims and objectives of the dissertation, or formulating questions to be investigated.
- Drawing up initial dissertation outlines considering the aims and objectives of the dissertation. Workout various stages of dissertation.
- Devising a timeline ensures that all stages of dissertation are completed in time. The timeline should include writing of the dissertation and regular meetings with the dissertation guide.

Syllabus

Proposal of the Dissertation should essentially have the following:

- a. Introduction, brief background, and Rationale of the topic chosen for the project.
 - b. Statement of the problem with a brief review of literature.
 - c. Objectives of the Project (including research questions, definitions of the concepts/ variables used, hypothesis if any)
 - d. Research Methodology:
 - f. Research Design
 - g. Nature and source of data/information to be collected.
 - h. Sample and sampling technique.
 - i. Tools and Techniques to be used for data collection – Method/s to be used for data collection. Data handling and analysis
 - j. Limitation of the proposed project, if any. Future direction for further research (optional).
- Any other relevant detail which will help better appreciation and understanding of the project proposal.

The Dissertation plan or outline

Essentially, the dissertation plan is a chapter wise outline and therefore should reflect the aims and objectives of the dissertation.

Plagiarism in the dissertation would require resubmission of the Dissertation and students would not be eligible to receive the BSW Honors degree with Research till such re-submission and evaluation.

Programme	BSW Honours
Course Name	PROJECT IN SOCIAL WORK
Type of Course	PRJ
Course Code	MG8PRJSWK400
Course Level	400
Course Summary	The successful completion of the final project is intended to equip the student to practice knowledge, skills, and professional competencies acquired as a result of mastering all the previous courses in the UG programme. The field-based learning will provide opportunities for students to understand the different socio- economic contexts. The students are supposed to engage with complex issues in different social work settings/communities/institutions and develop innovative ideas required to generate solutions to the identified problems.

Remember (R), Understand (U), Apply (A), Analyse (An), Evaluate (E), Create (C), Skill (S), Interest (I) and Appreciation (Ap)

The students will be given opportunity to gain a first-hand understanding of the both technical and social dimensions, (requiring multi-dimensional analysis) involved while designing and implementing a project. These projects should be relevant to the local community or other social work organisations. Students are expected to discover existing knowledge on the topic, to interact with the stake holders who is supposed to be effected by the project, analyze alternatives that make society better off, calculate the possible impacts of the project. Using this background research, the students then creatively design new projects to address these social issues.

Students' engagement in a project activity has two goals: to serve a local community and to provide a credit-bearing educational experience that directly relates to the goals and objectives of a course within the academic curriculum. By addressing needs and issues within the local community through service, students are able to apply what they have learned in a course.

Students reflect on their service activities in order to learn curricular concepts and to practice problem solving and evaluative skills as well as analytical, critical and reflective thinking.

COURSE CONTENT

Each student have to prepare and finalise a project proposal towards the end of the SEVENTH semester. The students can suggest their own project proposals, but a theme of a final project requires approval by the department. Department Council will review the proposals and decide allocation of supervisors. The Department will be responsible for conducting workshops of Proposal Writing, project implementation, project evaluation etc.

Planning the Project

The student should follow the following steps

- Preparation of the project proposal
- Agreement with the communities/organisations
- Preparing LFA
- Resource mobilisation
- Impact assessment
- Adhering to the timeline and activities projected in the proposal
- Evaluation of the Outcomes of the project
- Submission of the project report

(These steps are not exhaustive. The departments can come up with the exact project steps based on the requirements of the project).

Project Assessment Rubric

Each step should be assessed based on clear criteria. For example the rubric for assessment of the project proposal is given below. (Rubric for assessment of each step of the project should be prepared by the department council)

1. Ideation - Ideation in identifying client groups and problem, Ideation in process, ideation in solutions.

The project should clearly identify a need, problem or opportunity that can be addressed and presents an innovative or unique solution or a set of solutions that have transformative potential.

2. Feasibility - Market potential, strategic fit, resource requirements (technology and capital)

The proposal reflects a strong grasp of the project context, the barriers to entry, the risks and opportunities of launching a new social strategies in this field, and identifies a unique value proposition or competitive advantage.

The proposal identifies relevant stakeholders and beneficiaries, reflects design thinking in how it seeks to meet the needs of its end-users, and draws on research and data. The plan includes a novel and rigorous outreach strategy and empowerment of the beneficiaries.

The proposal includes a plausible financial model that explains how revenues will be generated and reinvested in a sustainable manner to support the social mission of the project. The proposal presents the team, its skills and motivations, and current resources and partners and lays out future needs for recruitment and additional resources.

3. Relevance/ Social Impact - usefulness of the project, client need based project, The proposal has a clearly articulated and plausible theory of change.

The proposal features indicators, metrics, or approaches that can be used to measure relevant impacts like - social, environmental, gender, cultural, financial and so on.

The evaluation and monitoring criteria should be included

4. Structure of the Proposal - Language, design aesthetics

The proposal is written in an engaging, clear, and persuasive manner.

The proposal is well structured, with appropriate subtitles and an appropriate flow from section to section. The plan includes a clear and plausible timeline for how the social enterprise will develop and grow over time.

The design and layout of the proposal is aesthetically captivating. The parameters of evaluating the quality of the project is given below

Parameter	Components
Ideation	Client	Problem	Solution	Process
Feasibility	Resource Mobilization	Potential	Strategic Fit	Sustainability
Social Impact	Clients	Society	Monitoring criteria	Evolution Criteria
Structure of the proposal	Language	Design Aesthetics	Plausible timeline	Well structured
